The unparallelled effects of this great restorative are due to its tendency to stimulate nature to the production of her own medicine. It has been found that the human system is capable of curing itself of almost all diseases, and that the physician's duty is to assist in this process, and to withhold the least of artificial aid until the system is so far advanced that it is able to take care of itself.

The human body has a self-healing power, and it is the duty of the physician to assist in this process, and to withhold the least of artificial aid until the system is so far advanced that it is able to take care of itself.
